COUNCIL CHOOSES NEW BOROUGH SOLICITORSF. D. Munson Is Elected to Succeed Shelby and Renner.

THE EXPLANATION GIVEN.

West Side Hill Ordinance Is Passed and Chairman Storer Is Told to Report Later on Automobile Hook and Ladder Wagon.

The Town Council met last night, but aside from electing a new borough solicitor, nothing important was done. The solicitors, E. Ray Shelby and J. Kirk Renner, drew their resignations, effective January 1, and Attorney F. D. Munson was elected to succeed them. Munson's term is to continue until 1913. Following his election as District Attorney Solicitor Shelby informed the members of Council that he would not be able to give the borough solicitorship in Connellville the time it required, which brought about the change last evening. Councilman W. P. Clark was the only member of the Organization in Council who voted to retain Solicitor Renner. Prior to the meeting, it is said, he made an effort to round up enough votes to keep J. Kirk in office.

Councilman B. L. Berg was Renner's only open advocate. He questioned Council's right to remove Renner without a trial and sufficient cause. He was of opinion that Renner held over in office as well as the Councilmen themselves.

"It is not obligatory to make an explanation as to the cause for removal," said Chairman Fitzgibbon of the Finance Committee, and President Millard put the motion. It carried.

The motion was made by Chairman Fitzgibbon, who moved that "Council dispense with the services of Shelby and Renner, and that their salaries be paid up to and including December 31."

The debate on the matter was brief. Councilman Frank Friel advanced his opinion on the efficiency of Attorney Renner.

"I'd like to know what he has done for the past year," said Friel. "He hasn't done any work and he hasn't attended any meetings." Mr. Brennan inquired, "What are we paying his salary for?"

Berg concluded that Renner "had done as much as the rest of them," and the motion was put and carried.

The West Side hill paving ordinance was read and passed for the second and final time. Council authorized the asking of bids.

Chairman C. M. Storer of the Public Safety Committee arose to suggest the purchase of an automobile hook and ladder wagon. He said the ladder demonstrated the need of better equipment. The matter was referred to Mr. Storer and then dropped.

There was report offered before the meeting that an effort might be made to oust the present Fire Chief as well as the Borough Solicitors, but it appears to have been an idle rumor started by the minority which refused to pass. The plan to put on a night sergeant for the police force was not mentioned.

C. W. Bettler was awarded the contract for curbing Leisenring, Marquette, Sixth and an alley on the West Side, at 50 cents per foot for the curb and concrete work and channeled iron. Another bid at 61 cents for concrete work was not signed.

A petition for paving East Church place between Mountain, Valley and Prospect street was received. An ordinance for paving will be prepared.

Henry McCormick asked that he be authorized to rebuild the fence across Willow street, in Snyder street, which were torn down when Council opened the thoroughfare past J. W. Stafford's place. The matter was referred to the Street Committee. The Street Committee was also directed to investigate the need of walks along Sycamore street which have not yet been built. The Light Committee will look into the need of two more lights in the Davidson and Newmyer addition.

The Public Buildings and Grounds Committee was authorized to have concrete floor and wainscoting laid in the hall and police court room of the borough building.

The comprehensive sewer plan that has been completed by Borough Engineer J. B. Hogg was presented to Council.

PRESS MILL BLOWS UP

Explosion at Oliphant Tuesday Night
Startled Uniontown.

The big press mill of the E. I. DeNemour Dupont Powder Company at Oliphant, which blew up Tuesday night causing the greatest kind of excitement in Uniontown and parts of Fayette county within a radius of six miles of Oliphant where the shock was felt.

The mill exploded with terrific force from an unknown cause. There was no one working in the big mill at the time of the explosion and no one was injured.

The mill is situated in the mountains, about one mile from Oliphant. The employees of the company nearly all live at Oliphant and they were at home when the explosion occurred. The night watchman was in another building, Mill No. 1, which is a press building where the powder is pressed into cakes, is a total ruin.

When the big explosion occurred it was thought that it was in Uniontown. It was believed that the National Bank of Fayette county had been entered by burglars who had blown the vault open in search for the money.

SIX KILLED TODAY
IN WRECK AT MANORFrast Express Train Crashes Into Wreckage of Freights.

VETERAN ENGINEER A VICTIM

Seventeen Horses of Adams Express Company Were Killed—Engine and Cars Tumbled Over 20 Foot Embankment.

Six men were killed and three seriously injured today in a wreck on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad at Horning's crossing, near Manor, when a fast express No. 17 crashed into the wreckage of two freight trains which had previously collided. The engine and several passenger cars were thrown over the embankment into Bush creek, a 20 foot drop.

The dead.

J. FRANK JAHN, aged 50 and single, of Irwin, engineer of No. 17. Five unidentified men, express men or hostlers in stock car, caught between bodies of horses and crushed to death.

The injured.

JOSEPH H. NEEL, aged 23, of Juniata, fireman of No. 17; rightfully burned about the back and arms.

GEORGE H. MYERS, aged 30 and married, of Youngwood, engineer, left leg crushed and amputated at Westmoreland Hospital.

W. M. MILLER, fireman, of Youngwood, left ankle sprained; taken to home at South Fork.

The wreck occurred at 7:45 this morning. It is generally believed that extra No. 3078, out of Youngwood, collided with a train of empty coal cars, the wreckage spilling over on No. 4 track, the outside rails of the four track system. The express train, bound from New York to Chicago, was sent over No. 4 track and crashed. The locomotive and several of the cars plunged over the embankment and piled up in Bush creek. Engineer Neel, one of the veterans of the Pennsylvania service, was crushed between the locomotive and tender, and so badly scalded that death was almost instantaneous. Joseph H. Neel, his fireman, was crushed between the engine and tender and extricated with difficulty. His condition is serious. Engineer George H. Myers, who was in the engine, was crushed between cars and it was necessary to amputate his left leg. Fireman W. M. Miller, also of the engine, was crushed between the engine and tender and extricated with difficulty. All the injured were removed to the Westmoreland hospital at Greensburg but Miller returned home.

One of Youngwood cars contained 18 horses of the Adams Express Company, which were being sent from New York to Wilkeson, N. D. Of number 17, the horses were killed and today is calmly munching hay in a barn near the scene of the wreck.

The five unidentified victims of the wreck were either express messengers or hostlers. They were in the car with the horses and were caught beneath the tons of bodies, which crushed them to death. The work of extricating the bodies of these men was accomplished with great difficulty.

At 10 o'clock one track had been cleared and Superintendent R. T. Morrow, one of the first officials on the road, stated that all the tracks would be open by 1 o'clock this afternoon. Four wreck trains are clearing up the wreckage. The wreckage is piled up in a serious condition. A relief train was rushed out of Pittsburgh, carrying physicians and railroad officials.

The train on the southwest branch were delayed by the wreck and it was necessary to transfer the passengers. The second train south came through more than an hour and a half late.

KEEPING PACE WITH GRAND JURY

As Fast As Bills Were Returned the Defendants Were Placed on Trial and Jurors Lost No Time Reaching Their Verdicts.

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER.
UNIONTOWN, Dec. 6.—Cases in criminal court this morning were tried as fast as bills were returned by the grand jury. Isaac Trussler of Ohioville pleaded guilty to larceny. He was prosecuted by Henry Bryner, who claimed Trussler stole $50 in a pocketbook from under his pillow. Trussler claimed he took the pocketbook simply as a joke. He was let off with the payment of costs.

David McMillan pleaded guilty to desertion and non-support. He was sent to the workhouse for six months. His wife, Anna McMillan, was the prosecutor.

Dominic Fitzko was convicted of carrying concealed weapons and larceny. He was sent to Huntingdon. George Kesovic was sent to two years to the workhouse for aggravated assault and battery. He hit a countryman at Lynn station two months ago with a pick, knocking out several teeth.

The court was told by the county judge a penny arcade at the county seat. In this place they had besides an electric piano that played the same tune fifteen hours a day, punching bags, a shooting gallery and penny picture machines. These machines were operated by depositing a penny in a slot. When the picture had been seen or one word delivered to the purchaser. It was testified that the pictures received in this place were very obscene.

Isaac Van Swearingen last evening sentenced Joseph Solowicki, convicted of carrying concealed weapons, to serve nine months in the Allegheny workhouse and pay a fine of $75 and costs. Paul Horvath and Mary Turilla were prosecuted by Susan Margovics for assault and battery. Horvath was acquitted, and Mrs. Turilla was found guilty and sentenced to pay the costs by Judge Van Swearingen.

Isaac Trussler, charged with larceny, pleaded guilty of stealing $50 from a bed in his boarding house. His attorney, V. R. Bingham, made a plea for mercy of the court, and he was allowed to go for the present.

Before Judge Van Swearingen, a plea was made for the defendant, James Frelzo, charged with assault and battery upon his wife. After hearing the wife's story of the husband's violence, the court revoked the former sentence of 30 and costs and increased it to 60 days and costs.

EVERYONE NEEDS IT

Graham & Co., of Connelville, and S. A. Lowe & Co., of Scottdale, Pa., are having a Wonderful Sale of Thompson's Ham, the Mighty Kidney and Liver Specific.

And no wonder, when they offer to refund your money if it doesn't cure any disease of the kidneys, liver or bladder, backache, headache, nervousness or any weakness of the kidneys. But Thompson's Ham is made so many almost miraculous cures that Graham & Co., of Connelville, and S. A. Lowe & Co., of Scottdale, are pretty certain not to have any returns.

Here are a few instances: Frank K. Sturges, Sturtevant, Crawford county, Pa., was cured of Bright's disease six years ago and only took six bottles. He has had no bad symptoms since. "I had kidney trouble and enlargement of the liver and spleen. I took Thompson's Ham. The first bottle reduced the measurement around my stomach from 45 to 38 inches, and several bottles completely cured me."—M. S. Langworthy, Tyroneville, Pa. After suffering the terrible agony of rheumatism for ten years, being compelled to use crutches, J. N. Dunn, Troy Center, Pa., after all hopes had left him, and he had no faith in any remedy, took six bottles of Thompson's Ham, threw away his crutches and went to work for the first time in ten years.

These statements are absolutely true, and the Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa., will prove it. Then why should anyone suffer in the face of such facts? How can they suffer when Graham & Co., of Connelville, and S. A. Lowe & Co., of Scottdale, guarantee to refund the money if a cure is not effected? Thompson's Ham, 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. ## An Agricultural Club for Boys And Girls in Somerset County.

Special to The Courier.
SOMERSET, Dec. 5.—County Superintendent of Schools Daniel V. Halbert today announced the details of a plan to develop more interest in the farm and the home among the school children of the county. Supt. Halbert proposes to organize a "Boys' Agricultural Club and Girls' League." The object of the Agricultural Club is to determine which boys who enter the competition can grow the most or best grain to the acre, under definite rules of planting, cultivating and harvesting. The Girls' League will be an association to determine who, among those competing, can make the best bread as well as do the best sewing and gardening.

All boys and girls not over 13 years of age are eligible to membership in the club, a branch of which will be organized promptly in each school district. The officers of each district association will consist of a President, Vice President, Secretary and Treasurer.

Supt. Halbert, assisted by the various teachers, will arrange for public contests, exhibits, and the procuring and awarding of prizes. Each district will conduct an exhibit of its own, and will then send the winners to a county contest, which will be a new feature of next year's Teachers' Institute. The first Saturday in November, 1912, has been fixed as the date for holding the district contests, when competent judges will make the awards, and determine who shall represent the respective districts at the county affair.

In the needlework contest the following prizes will be awarded at the county exhibit, all entries to be made not later than Tuesday of institute week:

Best handkerchief (hand made)—first prize, $3.00; second prize, $1.00. Best setting in a patch "in close woven plaid goods"—first prize, $3.00; second prize, $1.00.

Best darning a hole in either dress goods or table linen (not less than one inch in diameter, darning to be done with either silk, linen, or cotton thread)—first prize, $3.00; second prize, $1.00.

Most skillful work (all to be done by exhibitor) first prize, $1.00.

Each girl exhibiting in the bread-making contest must bake without assistance, while each loaf of bread must be accompanied by an envelope containing a statement as to how the bread was made, time to raise, number of times kneaded, length of time in kneading, and how long it was in the oven. Cash premiums will be awarded as follows: First prize, $5.00; second prize, $3.00; third prize, $2.00.

The boys at the institute week corn growing contest will each exhibit 10 ears of corn, grown on a plot of ground not containing 40 acres. The following premium will be awarded on corn: First prize, $5.00; second prize, $3.00; third prize, $2.00. For the best ear on exhibition a cash prize of $1.00 will be awarded.

SOMERSET COUNTY ORCHARDIST PRAISES THE BEN DAVIS APPLE

Says It Is Misunderstood and Is Not Given Required Time to Properly Mature.

Special to The Courier.
SOMERSET, Dec. 5.—Philip J. Moore, of Trent, president of the Somerset County Agricultural Society, was in town yesterday and talked interestingly on the future of Somerset county as an apple producer. Mr. Moore believes that the Ben Davis variety, probably the most popular specimen in the apple catalogue, will in time become one of the best sellers. "Somerset county growers have not yet become fully acquainted with the Ben Davis," he said. "There are, of course, several reasons why it does not market as well as others. In the first place, Mr. Davis is condemned because it does not ripen when the other apples mature. The orchardists as well as the consumers seem to be impatient, not understanding its bearing qualities, high coloring and long-keeping, which, when fully developed, give it quite a fine flavor."

"At the season when other apples ripen the Ben Davis is condemned because it has not the quality of its competitors," he continued. "This is entirely wrong. It must be considered a later competitor of the earlier varieties, which ordinarily are known as late. The Ben Davis does not thoroughly mature until the harvest season following its picking. It properly protected from the weather until July or August, it becomes one of the best apples that grow. If more attention were only exercised in respect to the Ben Davis, it would be considered one of the most valuable varieties, and such it must ultimately be known."

President Moore's farm in Middle-creek township, at the eastern foot of the majestic Laurel Hill Mountains and lying along the western bank of the classic Laurel Hill creek, includes one of the best orchards in the county. His trees are not infrequently one of the modern pests and spraying of time-consuming solutions, etc., is quite unnecessary. Many folks have got the notion that good fruit cannot be raised without the use of the latest spraying combinations, says Mr. Moore. To aid in disclosing this false impression, Mr. Moore brought with him a few specimens of apples grown in his orchard. He said he could have brought forty different varieties, but on account of the limited capacity of his conveyance he confined his display to Arkansas Beauty, King Tompkins, Baldwin, Spitzenberg, Mammoth Ribb, and Ben Davis. On account of sickness in his family Mr. Moore could not get here in time to have his apples entered in the competition at the Agricultural Fair, but if they had been judged along with the other exhibits it is a safe guess that he would have come out among the prize-winners, as all the fruit was rich in quality and color and perfectly developed.

The Tenderfoot Farmer

It was one of these experimental farmers, who put green spectacles on his cow and fed her shavings. His theory was that it didn't matter what the cow ate so long as she was fed. The questions of digestion and nourishment had not entered into his calculations.

It's only a "tenderfoot" farmer that would try such an experiment with a cow. But many a farmer feeds himself regardless of digestion and nutrition. He might almost as well eat shavings for all the good he gets out of his food. The result is that the stomach grows "weak" the action of the organs of digestion and nutrition are impaired and the man suffers the miseries of dyspepsia and the agonies of nervousness.

To strengthen the stomach, restore the activity of the organs of digestion and nutrition and brace up the nerves, use Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is an un-failing remedy, and has the confidence of physicians as well as the praise of thousands healed by its use.

In the strictest sense "Golden Medical Discovery" is a temperance medicine. It contains neither intoxicants nor narcotics, and is as free from alcohol as from opium, cocaine and other dangerous drugs. All ingredients printed on its outside wrapper.

Don't let a dealer delude you for his own profit. There is no medicine for stomach, liver and blood "just as good" as "Golden Medical Discovery."

WEDNESDAY EVE'G. DEC. 6, 1911.

THE CONNELLSVILLE
FIRE DEPARTMENT.

The proposition of the Chairman of the Public Safety Committee for the purchase of an automobile hose and ladder wagon is one which should receive the careful consideration of the Town Council, but it is not the only thing about the Connelleville fire department that should receive the same consideration.

A good fire department equipped with modern fire-fighting machines in sufficient sizes and quantities to effectively protect the town or city is a good investment. It is not a luxury, but a matter of safety.

It is small compared with the last cost of conflagration in communities which economize in their expenditures at the expense of the efficiency of their fire departments.

Connelleville needs a properly housed and equipped fire department, and there should be no delay in providing all things necessary to make it so.

James B. McNamara who by his own confession murdered 11 people in one blow, has confessed and has been sentenced to life imprisonment, which probably means that for every life he "killed" he will serve one year in prison. That is certainly not too much retribution. Public opinion and equal and exact justice will say that he ought to be hanged 21 separate and distinct times. That would, of course, be illegal and impossible, but it certainly would not be inequitable or unjust.

The Fayette county courts tried a pretty black case this week, but the verdict seems to be under the seems desirable.

The proposition of a Connelleville bank to establish a Christmas Stinking Fund in every family is interesting, and it is to be hoped that it will prove instructive. It is certainly better to what you hope to make.

Connelleville, were prosecuted by M.
Horowitz, for assault and battery. The principals of the action are Horowitz, and it is their custom that the meat they eat be killed by an authorized person. Horowitz, so it was claimed, had got in arrears and had been notified that no more meat would be killed for him until he had made it up. One evening he got into a dispute with Bovitz about the matter and invited him out into the street. The session was adjourned to the pavement where Horowitz said "if you are going to hit me, hit me in the eye." And Bovitz hit him in the eye. The jury found the defendant not guilty, but divided the costs equally between the principals.

SCOTSDALE'S SECOND POULTRY EXHIBITION

Large and Interested Crowd Gathers to Discuss Fine Lot of Entries.

HANDSOME PRIZES ARE OFFERED

The New School Board Effects Its Organization Under the Code, Electing Aaron Loucks President and Dr. O. L. Hess, Secretary.

Special to The Courier. SCOTSDALE, Dec. 5.—Much interest is being manifested in the second annual exhibition of the Scottdale Poultry and Pet Stock Association which opened here yesterday and will continue until Saturday. Commodious and comfortable quarters have been arranged in the second story of the big livery barn on Stoner street and means of entrance have been found from that street, placing the show in a very advantageous location, where big crowds are now in attendance. The exhibition this year far surpasses the show of last year, which was a notable one in the two counties. Much over 200 of an increase in the entries is noticeable this season making a total over 300, which is the largest number in the birds shown is also to be seen. The association owns all its coops and purchased a considerable number of new ones for this show, so that it is one of the best equipped shows anywhere in the west end of Pennsylvania. The best of care is being given the stock and attendants have arranged the exhibits in the best manner possible. Yesterday the school children were admitted to the show free, the association being desirous of increasing the knowledge of poultry among the youngsters. The White school sent a large delegation in, and the country boys and girls took much interest in the exhibit. The exhibit is a very fine one, and is supplemented by a large number of specialties. These are on exhibition in Ferguson's furniture store, window and are attracting much attention. Judge Charles V. Keeler, of Wintona, Indiana, arrived yesterday and is at work.

In Mr. Hall's re-election as Treasurer it was understood that the Broadway National Bank be continued as the depository at the same rate of interest they have been paying for the school funds. They will pay 3 1/2 per cent on the daily balances until the first Monday of July, 1912. ### TONA VITA WILL BUILD UP WEAK, RUN DOWN PEOPLE

Cure For Nervous Debility, An Ailment Which Has Swept the Country in Ten Years.

The hectic and weary and strain of modern life has produced a modern ailment. This modern ailment is nervous debility and during the past ten years it has swept over the country like wild-fire.

Today a large percentage of the population, particularly city dwellers, are afflicted with nervous debility or a "run-down" condition as it is called.

The chief symptoms of this modern complaint are lack of vitality and energy, nervousness and stomach trouble, weak back, poor circulation, constipation and insomnia.

Old fashioned remedies failing, a modern tonic was introduced in Europe to overcome this trouble. The medicine was an instantaneous success and a similar tonic is now making with tremendous success in this country. The tonic is called Tona Vita and it builds up rundown people in a few weeks time.

Are you a victim of this miserable run-down, half-sick, tired-all-the-time condition? Do you lack energy and ambition? If so, you have nervous debility and the wisest thing you can do is to let Tona Vita build you up and bring back your health and strength as it has done for thousands of others. You will be astonished how quickly this great modern tonic will make you feel as though made over.

SLAVISH MINER AND NEGRO VICTIM OF TWO MURDERS

One Beaten to Death on Way Home From Work and the Other Shot in His Home.

Special to The Courier. GREENSBURG, Dec. 6.—Brutal home from work early yesterday morning, George Sutor, a Hungarian of this city, about 30-years old, was set upon and beaten to death. His cousin, Joe Sutor, is in jail charged with the crime.

The prisoner was arrested by Corporal Graham of the State police, who was detailed on the case.

The dead man was horribly beaten and the mutilated body indicated the work of a veritable fiend. His skull was crushed, evidently with a heavy club or bar of iron. One eye was gouged out, and the face and body covered with cuts and bruises. The body was not discovered until Tuesday morning, when workmen found it lying on the road near the P. R. crossing. The body was removed to the morgue.

Lloyd "Phornhill," a fugitive, is held responsible for the killing of David Parker at Superior mine, early Sunday morning, while Walter Scott, Robert Remondy and Jesse Burley, eye witnesses to the shooting are being held pending further investigation. All are colored. Parker was shot in his shanty home.

Pennsylvania's Coal Output. Pennsylvania was the first producer of coal, in 1814, and has been by far the largest producer in the United States, according to the United States Geological Survey, having now a record which surpasses all foreign countries except England and Germany.

Pennsylvania's total production since the beginning of mining has been 4,432,071,787 short tons, or more than one-half of the total production of the United States.

Going to the Texas League. Leo Klingensmith, the crack right fielder of the Morgan team, will go to Texas early in the spring where he will try out for the fast Vaco team of the Texas league. Klingensmith was "found" by Earl Leckbecker, who is thoroughly familiar with the Texas league. # CHRISTMAS TOYS

Where will the Christmas toys come from that will gladden the hearts of the girls and boys, when they waken in the cold gray of the morning of December 25th?

A very great many of them will come from this store. We have taken an attractive part as Lieutenant to Santa Claus.

As many of you know, our toy buyer journeys to London, Paris, Vienna, Nuremberg and the Black Forest District in Germany, that this store may have each Christmas unique, distinctive toys.

This is the only store in Pittsburgh importing its own toys and showing them almost to the exclusion of domestic toys. This is done for several reasons, chief among which is that we are thus able to show distinctive things. The greatest toy makers of the world are found in Europe. They have spent a life-time at it, and their fathers and mothers and grandparents were all toy makers. European-made toys are more substantial; in their details are given more careful attention. Above all, there is a decided difference in appearance; there are more unique ideas.

Take dolls, for instance. There is one man in Paris who makes the finest dolls made in the world. He makes no cheap dolls. His product is with him a work of art, just as is the making of a fine gown or the painting of a beautiful picture. Germany produces the largest number of dolls and the greatest variety. From there come the Handwerck dolls that have struck a new note, because of their life-likeness.

Airships are made chiefly in France and of them we have a large number. We have six different types, ranging from the Wright Brothers' biplane to the graceful, bird-like Marie Autoinette. These machines are priced from $1.00 to $27.50, according to size and complexity of construction. We have tested these machines and they all fly with their own motive power. They will be a source of delight to the boys fortunate enough to find them a part of their Christmas. Even the little $1.00 airships will fly about 600 feet, and some of the larger ones will fly 1,200 feet.

New, this season, are some vastly interesting walking animals. You wind them up and release the spring and they parade across the floor, in life-like representation of their living prototypes. Another distinctive feature is that in taking a step they lift the foot clear of the floor, just as do the living animals.

For boys of a mechanical turn of mind, a new toy, that is really more than a toy, is an English invention called "Meccano." It consists of a set of steel plates, pulleys, set-screws and other attachments. From a single set, bridges may be built, steel cranes constructed, structural iron work represented like the frame of a building, and a score of other pieces of machinery built in absolute likeness of the big mechanisms necessary in the huge engineering works so characteristic of this century. These sets sell upwards from $2.00.

There are, therefore, thousands of new and novel things, as well as all of the old favorites with which to entertain children.

The Toy Department at this time is one of the most interesting spots, because it offers so much, and with all that, at such little expenditure. The fact that we import toys does not indicate high prices.

We buy them on the other side, pay the duty and carrying charges and sell them at no higher prices than domestic toys.

With all these facilities—the facilities of Europe—it is easy to understand why the Christmas stocking and the Christmas tree in many a home around Pittsburgh will be supplied from this, the most interesting, the most practical, the most unique assortment of toys to be found in the city of Pittsburgh.

Girls are particularly enthusiastic over the lovely Wardrobe Trunks that have been brought from abroad. They are just like mother's trunks, except that they contain the doll herself, as well as her wardrobe. When you throw back the lid of some of these trunks a concealed organ begins to play and continues as long as the lid of the trunk is upright. Inside are dolly and her wardrobe, including everything that a doll should wear, morning, afternoon and evening. These Trunks are $10.00 to $27.50. There are a great many dresses, wraps, sweaters, caps, jewelry and toilet articles for dolls, all in such variety and at so many different prices that it would be difficult indeed to even print them. But recently the Toy Department has again been enlarged. This was made necessary by the receipt of a large number of new foreign and domestic toys different from any we have previously displayed. This Toy Department now occupies entire west basement.

We want to remind you that Christmas is on a Monday, and that it is necessary to have all your purchasing done, and the packages delivered to your home by Saturday, December 23d. This leaves little more than one week to do all your purchasing.

And you who live a little distance from Pittsburgh should remember that at this time the mail, express and freight are all busy to the highest and last degree.

CHAPTER XVI.

The duchess ran Dan, made plans, set the pace, and they were very much in evidence during the season. The young American, good-natured and generous, the duchess beautiful and knowing, were the observed of London, and those of her friends who would have tolerated Dan on account of his money, ended by sincerely liking him. The wedding-day had not been fixed as yet, and Dan was not so violently carried away that he could not wait to be married. Meanwhile Gordon Galorey thanked God for the delay and hoped for a miracle to break the spell over his friend's son before it should be too late. In early May the question came up regarding the marriage. The duchess made her hat and arranged the Sunday afternoon and her performers to suit her taste, and the week before looking to her boudoir when Dan and Galorey appeared for a late morning call.

"There, Dan," she said holding out a bit of paper, "look at the list and the program, will you?"

"Sounds and reads all right," commented Dan, handing it to Galorey. Besides being an artistic event, she intended that the concert should serve to present Dan to her special set. She now lit a cigarette and gave one to each of her friends, lighting the Englishman's herself.

"The best names in London," Lord Galorey said. "You see, Dan, we shall trot you out in a royal way. I hope you fully appreciate how swaggy this is to be."

"Glancing at the list Blair remarked: 'But I don't see Miss Lane's name.' 'Why should you?' the duchess answered sharply.

"Why, we planned all along that she was to sing," he returned.

"She gave up going to her cigarette."

"We did rather speak of it. But we shall do very well as we are. The program is full up and it's perfectly ripping as it stands."

"Yes, there's only just one thing the matter with it," the boy smiled good-naturedly. "And it's easy enough to run her in. I guess Miss Lane could be run in most anywhere on any program and not clear the house."

Lord Galorey, who knew nothing about the subject, under discussion, said tactfully: "Why, of course, Letty Lane is perfectly charming; but you couldn't get her, my dear chap."

"I think we will let the thing stand as it is," said the duchess, going back to her desk and stirring her paper about. "It's really too late now, you know, Dan."

Unruffled but with a determination which Lord Galorey and the lady were far from guessing, Blair resumed tranquilly:

"Oh, I guess she'll come in all right, late as it is. We'll send word to her and fix it up."

The duchess turned to him, annoyed: "Oh, don't be a beauty boy, dear— you are not really serious."

Dan still smiled at her sweetly. "You bet your life I am, though, Lily." She rang a bell at the side of her desk, and when the footman came in gave him the sheet of paper. "See that this is taken at once to the stationer's."

"Better wait, Lily"—her fiance extended his hand to her, the program is filled out the way it is going to stand. And Blair fixed his handsome eyes on his future wife. "Why, we got this shidly up," he noted irreverently. "Just so Miss Lane could sing at it."

"Nonsense," she cried, angry and powerless. "You ridiculous creature! Fancy me getting up a musicale for Letty Lane! Do tell Dan to stop bothering and fussing, Gordon. He's too ridiculous!"

"And Lord Galorey said: 'What is the row anyway?' 'Why I want Miss Lane to sing here on Sunday,'" Dan explained. "And I don't want her," blushed the Duchess of Breakwater, who was evidently unwilling to force a scene before Lord Galorey. She handed the list to her servant, but Dan intercepted it.

"Don't send out that list, Lily, as it is."

He gave it back to her, and his tone was so cool, his expression so decided and quiet, that she was disarmed, and dismissed the servant, telling him to return when she should ring again. Coloring with anger, she tapped the envelope against her brilliantly polished nails.

If she had been married to Blair she would have burst into a violent fit of rage. If he had been poorer than he was she would have put him in his place. Lord Galorey understood the contraction of her brows and lips as Dan reminded: "You promised me that you would have her, you know, Lily."

"Give in, Lily," Galorey advised, rising from the chair where he was crouching. "Give in gracefully."

And she turned on Galorey the anger which she dared not show the other man. But Dan interrupted her, explaining simply:

"I knew the girl when she was a child—she is from my old home, and I want Lily to ask her here to sing for us, and then to see if we can't do something to get her out of the state she's in."

Galorey repeated vaguely, "State?"

"Why, she's all run down, tired out; she's got no real friends in London."

"The other man flicked the ash from his cigarette and looked at Blair's boy through his monocle.

"And you thought that Lily might be a reformer, or a charitable institution, and if she comes here it is purely professional."

Galorey nodded back, smiling gently. "I see—I see—a moral, spiritual lift? I see—I see." He glanced at the woman with his strange smile.

"She put her cigarette down, and seated herself, clasping her hands around her knees and looked at her fiance.

"It's none of my business what Letty Lane's reputation is. I don't care, but you must understand one thing, Dan. I'm not a reformer, or a charitable institution, and if she comes here it is purely professional."

He took the subject as settled, and asked for a copy of the program and put it in his pocket. "I'll get the names of her songs from her and take the thing myself to Harrison's. And I'd better bustle, I guess; there's no time to lose between now and Sunday." And he went out triumphant.

Galorey remained, smoking, and the duchess continued her notes in silence, cooling down at her desk. Her companion knew her too well to look to her until she had herself in hand, and when finally she took up her pen and turned about, she appeared conscious for the first of his presence.

"Here still!" she exclaimed.

"I thought I might do for a safety valve, Lily. You could let some of your anger out on me."

"The duchess left her desk and came over to him.

"I expect you despise me thoroughly, don't you, Gordon?"

"They had not been alone together since her engagement to Blair, for she had taken pains to avoid every opportunity for a tête-à-tête.

"Despise you?" he repeated gently. "It's awfully hard, isn't it, for a chap like me to despise anybody? We're all right, but we're not really serious."

Dan still smiled at her sweetly. "You bet your life I am, though, Lily." She rang a bell at the side of her desk, and when the footman came in gave him the sheet of paper. "See that this is taken at once to the stationer's."

"Better wait, Lily"—her fiance extended his hand to her, the program is filled out the way it is going to stand. And Blair fixed his handsome eyes on his future wife. "Why, we got this shidly up," he noted irreverently. "Just so Miss Lane could sing at it."

"The other man flicked the ash from his cigarette and looked at Blair's boy through his monocle.

"And you thought that Lily might be a reformer, or a charitable institution, and if she comes here it is purely professional."

said slowly: "You had better go. . . . Then, as he obeyed her and went like a flash as far as the door, she followed him and whispered softly: "If you're really only jealous, I can forgive you."

He managed to get out. "His father was my friend; he sent the boy to me and I've been a bad guardian." He made a gesture of despair. "Put yourself in my place. Let Dan Blair go, Lily; let him go."

Her eyelids flickered a little, and she said sharply: "You're out of your senses, Gordon—and what if I love him?"

With a low exclamation he caught her hand at the wrist so hard that she cried out, and he said between his teeth: "You don't love him! Take those words back!"

"Of course I do. Let me free!"

"No!" he said passionately, holding her fast. "Not until you take that back!"

His face, his tone, his force, dominated her; the remembrance of their past, a possible future, made her way under his eyes, and the woman smiled at him as Blair had never seen her smile.

"Very well, then, goose," she capitulated almost tenderly; "I don't love that boy, of course. I'm marrying him for his money. Now, will you let me go?"

But he held her still more firmly and kissed her several times before he finally set her free, and went out of the house miserably—bound to her by the strongest chains of honor, of conscience, and by honor to his trust to Dan's father, and yet handicapped by another sense of honor which decrees that man must keep silence to the end.

CHAPTER XVII.

Letty Lane Sings.

The house of the Duchess of Breakwater in Park Lane was white, with green blinds and green balconies, beautiful, distinguished and old-mellow with traditions, and the idea of fashion poured its stream into the music-room to listen to the Sunday concert. Without the day was bland and beautiful, mild spring in the deep sweet air, and already the bloom lay over the park and along the turf. Piccadilly was ablaze with flowers, and in the windows and in the flower in men's baskets they were as sweet as to make the heart ache and to make the senses thrill. Keen to the spring beauty, the last guest to go into the drawing room of the Duchess of Breakwater was the young American in whom the music of the season had stirred the blood. He seemed the youngest and the brightest guest to cross the sill of the great house whose debris he was going to pay, and whose future he was going to secure with American money.

Close after him a motor car rolled up to the curb, and under the awning Letty Lane passed quickly as though thrust down, blown into the distinguished house. The actress was taken possession of by several people and shown up stairs.

Dan spoke to his hostess who wore, over her azure dress, a necklace given her by Dan. She said he was "too late for words," and why hadn't he come before. After greeting him she set him free, and he went eagerly to find his place next to an elderly woman whom he liked immensely. Lady Calverton. She had given him twenty pounds for some of his poor. Lady Calverton had a calm, kind face, and Dan sat down beside her, well out of the crush, and talked amiably throughout the violin solo.

"Think of it," she said, "Letty Lane of the Gaiety is going to sing! I'd sit through a great deal for that. Let that man with the addle do his worst!"

Blair laughed appreciatively. He thought Lady Calverton would be a good friend for Miss Lane, better than the duchess herself. "I wish Lily could hear you talk about her violin!" he said, delighted, "she thinks he's the whole show." And tentatively his ingenuous eyes fixed on his friend's face.

"I don't know how to say it," she would like to meet Miss Lane. She's perfectly ripping, and she's from my state."

"Most her!" Lady Calverton exclaimed, but before she could finish, through the room ran the little until capillary music that comes before the great, and which, when they have gone, breaks into applause. The great actress had appeared to give her number. Dan and Lady Calverton, behind the palms in a little corner of their own, watched her.

A clever understanding of the world into which she was to come this day had made the girl dress like a charm. She stood quietly by the piano, her hands folded. Among the high ladies of the English world in their splendid frocks, their jewels and feathers, she was a simple figure. Her dress was white high to her throat, unadorned by any gay color, according to the fashion of the time. It was such a dress as Romney might have painted, and under her arms and from across her breast there fell a soft coral-colored silk scarf. The costume was daring in its simplicity. She might have been Emma, Lady Hamilton, because perfectly beautiful, perfectly talented she could risk averse simple life, having in herself the fire and the calm. Her hair was a golden brown and her eyes like stars. She was excited, and the scarlet had run along her cheeks like wine spilled over ivory.

She looked around the room, failed to see Blair, but saw the Duchess of Breakwater in her velvet and her jeweled. Letty Lane began to sing. Dan and she had chosen Mandalay and she began with it. Her dress only was simple. All the complexity of her talent, whatever she knew of seduction and charm, she put in the rendering of her song. Even the conventional audience, most of which knew her well, were enraptured over again, and they went wild about her. She had never been so charming. The men clapped her until she began in self-defense another favorite of the moment, and ended in a perfect huzzah of applause.

She refused to sing again until, in the distance, she saw Dan standing by the column near his seat, then indicating to the pianist what she wanted, she sang The Earl of Moray, such a rendering of the old ballad as had not been heard in London, and coming, as it did from the lips of a popular singer whose character and whose voice were not supposed to be sympathetic to a piece of music of this kind the effect was startling. Letty Lane's face grew pale with the touching old tragedy, the scarlet faded from her cheeks, her eyes grew dark and moist, she might indeed herself have been the lady looking from the castle walls while they carried the body of her dead lover under those beautiful eyes.

Dan felt his heart grow cold. If she had awakened him when he was a little boy, she thrilled him now, he could have said. When the last note of the accompaniment had ended Dan's friend at his side said: "How utterly ravishing! What a beautiful lovely creature, how charming and how frail!"

He scarcely answered. He was making his way to Letty Lane, and the woman, his heart, murmured: "Oh, you're great, you're great!" And the pleasure on his face repaid her over and over again. "Come, I want you to meet the Duchess of Breakwater, and some other friends of mine."

As he let her little cold hand fall and turned about the room as by magic had cleared. The prime minister had arrived late and was in the other room. The refreshments were also being served. There was no one to meet Letty Lane, except for several young men who came up eagerly and asked to be presented, Gordon Galorey among them.

"Where's Lily?" Dan asked him; "I want her to meet Miss Lane."

"In the conservatory with the prime minister and Galorey looked manfully at Dan, as much as to say, "Now don't be an utter fool!"

But Letty Lane herself saved the situation. She shook hands with the utmost cordiality and sweetness and the men who had been presented to her and asked Dan to take her to her motor. He waited for her at the door and she came down wrapped around as usual in her filmy scarf.

"Are you better?" he asked eagerly. "You look awfully stunning, and I don't think I can ever thank you enough."

"She assured him that she was "all right," and that she had a "lovely new role to learn and that it was coming on next month." He helped her in and she seemed to fill the motor like a basket of fresh white flowers. Again he repeated, as he held the door open:

"I can't thank you enough, you were a great success."

She smiled wickedly, and couldn't resist:

"Especially with the women."

Dan's face flushed. He was already deeply hurt for her, and her words showed him that the insult had gone home.

"Where are you going now?"

"Right to the Savoy."

"Without another word, hatless as he was, he got into the motor and closed the door."

"I'm going to take you home," he informed her quietly, "and there's no use in looking at me like that either! When I'm set on a thing I get it!"

They rolled away in the bland sunset, the park down Piccadilly, where the flowers in the streets were so sweet that they made the heart ache, and the air through the window was so sweet that it made the senses swim!

DISFIGURING ECZEMA CURED IN 2 WEEKS

Blisters Broke and Formed Scabs. Nose Covered with Them. Very Itchy. Used Cuticura Remedies. Now Hasn't a Single Mark.

"My nephew first showed signs of eczema on the middle finger and it came on like a blister. The mother thought he had gotten it from some way unknown to her, and she treated it as such. He must have rubbed his face with that hand, as it then broke out on his nose the same way. When it is blisters broke they shriveled up and formed scabs. His nose was covered with scabs, and it was very itchy. He was badly disfigured with unsightly scabs. At first, his nose was sore, and it gradually became worse so his mother took him to the doctor, who gave him some preparation, and told her to rub the scabs off every day, and against the affected part with the medicine he gave her."

"The man must have been insane, as that was extreme torture to the child who was only two years old at the time and that was two years ago. Well, we decided that that treatment would have to end. I suggested Cuticura Ointment and they bought it and put it on freely every day for two weeks. He had the eczema for four weeks. He was so miserable that he was unable to go to school until they used the Cuticura Remedies, and he was cured in two weeks. He most certainly had the worst case of eczema I have ever seen."

(Signed) Miss Ida Elvén, 283 South Fifth St. Philadelphia, Pa. Jan. 4, 1911.

There has always been a generation of Cuticura Remedies have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp of infants and children. The Cuticura Ointment (50c) is often sufficient. All the world throughout the world, a little sample of each, with 22-p box on the skin will be sent free, on application to Pottery & Glass, Corp., Dept. 124, Boston.

FAMOUS AMERICAN INDIANS

ALBERT PATSON TERNUM POWHATAN.

On a high platform shaded by boughs sat a grizzled Indian on either side of him stood one of his favorite daughters. Below the platform were ranged forty guards. Beyond were a mass of savages not front of the dais stood a thick bearded white man. This white man—fearless adventurer, amazing liar founder of Virginia, ideal soldier of fortune—was Capt. John Smith. The grizzled chief on the platform was Powhatan, the oldest and strongest bank in town and the safety of every dollar deposited with it is assured.

4% on Savings—$1 Opens an Account

Smith had left the struggling English colony newly established at Jamestown, and had gone into the wilderness on an exploring expedition. He had been captured by Indians and passed on from tribe to tribe until he had been brought before Powhatan. For three days and nights there had been ceremonial to determine whether Smith was the "reincarnation" of a good or an evil spirit. At last Powhatan stopped the investigation by ordering Smith put to death. At this point—according to Smith's own story which has of late years been doubted—Powhatan's thirteen-year-old daughter, Matoka (known to the English as "Pocahontas") leaped down from her place at her father's side, threw herself between Smith and the executioners and begged Powhatan to spare the captive. Whatever were the means she employed, it is certain the girl made some sort of plea for Smith's life and that the soldier of fortune was not only spared but sent back to his low-lying island with provisions.

Powhatan was born about 1550 and was hereditary chief of eight small Virginia tribes. But by successful warfare and diplomacy he soon found himself Sagamore, or head chief, of thirty tribes, with wide territory and about 8000 warriors. He had twenty sons and ten daughters, but Pocahontas was his favorite child. Here is Smith's description of Powhatan's appearance at the time the two first met in 1607.

"He is a tall well proportioned man, with a sour look; his head somewhat gray, his beard so thin that it seems none at all; his age near sixty, of a very able and hardy body to endure any labor."

Powhatan did not wholly welcome the coming of the English. Sometimes he posed as Smith's dear friend; sometimes he clamored for his life. More than once he sent provisions to save the Jamestown colony from starving again, but he clung to his own's measure. Smith was the only white man who could obtain favors from the old chief. Capt. Christopher Newport, the colony went to Powhatan on a trading expedition to get supplies for Jamestown. Powhatan interrupted Newport's proposition by grunting angrily.

"It is not the wish of so great a chief as myself to trade like a peddler. Place on the ground all the things you have brought. I will take what I like and pay for it with corn."

He took every gift Newport displayed and gave him in return only three bushels of grain. Yet soon afterward he sold Smith 300 bushels of grain for two pounds of blue beads. Capt. Newport still thought he could win Powhatan's favor. So he went to England and brought back as presents for him a pitcher and bowl some gay clothing and a huge gilt crown. He sent word for Powhatan to come to Jamestown to receive these gifts and (by the English king's gracious order) be crowned "Emperor of the Indies." Powhatan was vastly flattered by this honor. But instead of coming to Jamestown he sent word:

"I am as much a monarch as the King of England. If he has sent me gifts let them be brought to me. I shall not go one step to receive them."

A ludicrous coronation. So Newport was forced to carry the presents and the crown to Powhatan's village on the York River. The Captain arranged a solemn coronation ceremony and bade Powhatan kneel to receive the crown. Powhatan refused. There was a hitch in the coronation until two big English soldiers pushed Powhatan by the shoulders and pushed him downward into a sort of crouching or kneeling posture. Then the heavy, ill-fitting crown was jammed down over his gray head. He was hailed as Emperor of the Indies, and a royal salute was fired.

Provisions again became scarce in the Jamestown colony. Smith planned to kidnap Powhatan and hold him for a ransom of grain. Powhatan followed the plot and sought revenge by a night attack on the colonists. But Pocahontas heard of her father's plan and sent Smith a timely warning. Powhatan then demanded that Smith be slain. But a display of firearms convinced him into momentary submission.

After Smith left Virginia Capt. Argall, a rough semi-piratical member of the colony, stole Pocahontas and held her as hostage to bring favors from her father. Powhatan groined bitterly for the loss of his beloved daughter but would not yield. Only when she married a colonist named Rolfe did he consent to make peace again with the English. This peace endured until Powhatan's death in April, 1618, after which new and deadlier trouble soon broke out.

COKERS CLIP WINGS OF ADAMS' CHERUBS

Have No Trouble Winning 50-37 but Last Half Was Fast.

HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS THERE

They Managed to Stir Up a Bit of Enthusiasm But Outlets of the Contest Was Too Cautious for the Cokers.

Last Night's Scores.
Connellsville 50; Charleroi 37.
Uniontown 24; South Side 19.
Johnstown 61; Washington 39.

Standing of the Clubs.
Uniontown ..... 12 1 .925
Johnstown ..... 11 4 .733
Connellsville ..... 7 9 .437
South Side ..... 8 8 .467
Charleroi ..... 9 9 .398
Washington ..... 0 11 .000

Games Tonight.
Uniontown at Washington.

The Cokers had little difficulty in trimming the Cherubs' wings last night by a score of 50-37. The first half was listless but the second act had more ginger in it. Cavanaugh was the high man of the evening and his opponent, Dolin, was next. Aside from the rooting of the High School football team and students the contest was somewhat tame. The attendance was small, which calls to mind the fact that unless both Charleroi and Washington make better drawing cards, one or both had better be dropped or something done.

The Cherubs need a little more brown. Heron adds considerable strength to the quiet but there is room for improvement. Jimmy Brown is going to make some player guilty of manslaughter unless he shows better staying powers. Jimmy is all there when it comes to nerve but lacks stamina. Dolin also appears light.

The first half ended 25-16 for the Cokers. Bush Beggs had a wild and sore throat so Egolf was sent in the second half. He got a pair of "old goals", outscoring his opponent, Jimmy Brown, by one. All the Cokers played well, particularly Cavanaugh, Dark, Deberry, Kummer, Beggs, Egolf and White. It cannot be said that Charleroi did badly. Their handicap was that of a team that had just taken a dose of Papa's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken. You will distinctly feel all the disagreeable symptoms leaving after the very first dose.

The most miserable headache, dullness, head and nose stuff up, excitement, sneezing, running of the nose, sore throat, mucous catarrh, discharges, soreness, stiffness, rheumatism, pains and other distresses vanishing.

Papa's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, with the knowledge that there is no other medicine made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 1-cent package of Papa's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

A Note or Two.
Petter sat on the bench and plugged hard all evening.

Allie Brown and Jack Adams were the hard hit, shooters of the evening.

Plenty of foul were called. Referee Alton had his eagle eye with him.

Johnstown has signed Eddie Peart. Peart will come home to root.

Set Holmes Peart is getting plenty of experience with his Washington team. If nothing else, he probably will attempt to snag the Peart deal.

The worst need of the Cokers is a backup guard. The basket is to often left unprotected. Field goals are not the only thing a man is sent into the cage to get.

The passing of the Coker team is noticeably improved. Can't see the other quintets have a whole lot on the D'aries just at this stage of the game and few teams are better fortified for utility men.

Young Dolin will bear watching. His trouble seems to be shortness of breath, but he will improve. To be a most consistent scorer and hit his own with Cavanaugh on the jump last night. Joe didn't have to extend himself, though.

HER SICKLY CHILD

Is Now Strong and Healthy—Vinol Built Her Up.

Every mother wants her little boy or girl to have a fair chance in the world. Make your children strong and healthy and they will grow up able and make their own way.

For ailing children there is nothing so good as Vinol, our delicious tonic, makes their blood rich and puts roses in their cheeks again.

"I have been giving Vinol to my little daughter," says Mrs. G. E. E. of Hockensack, N. J. "She was very delicate and I was worried about her. Vinol has built her up fine. She is strong and healthy now, with a good healthy color in her face which she never had before. It only took one bottle of Vinol to do this for her. She likes the taste of Vinol too."

We could tell you of many others right in this town—but give Vinol to your puny child and see how fast it improves. We give back your money if Vinol does not do all we claim.

Graham & Company, Druggists, Connelville, Pa. Vinol is sold in West Connelville by Fred H. Karmann.

AT THE THEATRE.

THE SOISSON.

Benah Blanford's Life Story. The Soisson theatre will present an attraction next Friday and Saturday, Dec. 8 and 9, that will interest all of the patrons of that cozy play house. It will be the "Life Story of Benah Blanford," presented in a clean, interesting manner that makes it a great moral lesson. Miss Blanford appears in the pictures and the story is one not soon forgotten. Performances are given from 1:30 to 6 P. and 6:30 to 11 P. M. The regular pictures are presented in conjunction with this special attraction.

"The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary." This comedy has been received with rapturous favor and Miss Lowell has been a distinguished success, her previous work as "Miss Hancy" in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" is still a most pleasant memory, and "Lizzie" in "The Lottery Man" emphasized her reputation as a remarkably clever actress of eccentric characters. To those who have not seen the play a brief outline of the narrative may prove interesting. As the title suggests, the story is concerned with the sudden discovery of a middle-aged lady that existence need not be of an exclusively dull and drab hue, that even an elderly spinster may be pardoned for occasionally throwing her cap over the windmills. Aunt Mary, discharging her primitive country home allows herself to be tempted by her harum-scarum nephew, Jack, a punk into the whirlpool of New York society, and so delighted is she with the experience that she determines to devote the remainder of her days to the cultivation of her own and her friends' enjoyment. Helen Lowell has won for herself a high reputation in the development of eccentric characters and so greatly has her work been praised that her appearance at the Soisson theatre Wednesday, Dec. 13, will be looked forward to with lively interest.
